

Possibility of Morse Censure Very Remote

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility of censure of Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Or.) for his actions in the controversy over the Bay of Pigs invasion, led by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy (D-N.Y.), is very remote, according to a source familiar with the situation.

Republican leaders indicated privately they want no part of a privately proposed censure of Morse by Sen. Homer Caphart (R-Ind.) that the Senate officially reprimand Morse for "conducting a campaign of disinformation."

Morse's physician, whether she had received psychiatric treatment, is not known.

Influential Democrats laughed off the Caphart suggestion as yet another stanza in the running feud between the Indiana Republican and the Oregon Democrat.

Morse said he would welcome a censure attempt by Caphart.

Caphart told a news conference Friday he believed Morse "acted with the height of irresponsibility" in calling Dr. Michael Rosenblatt of New York to ask about treatments directed for his patient.

Caphart said Morse, a former school teacher, knew he was going after "beyond what any senator should do in calling a doctor."

The Indiana senator said that the "hippies" who were "drugging" the Senate were "not doctors."

The Indiana senator noted that the "hippies" who were "drugging" the Senate were "not doctors."

The Senate always has been chary about dealing out the kind of censure Caphart proposed. It voted on Dec. 2, 1954 to condemn the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) for his actions in abusing members of its subcommittee on privileges and elections.

Mrs. Morse's decision not to accept the appointment which the Senate had confirmed by a vote of 75-17, was accepted, however, by President Eisenhower. Her action brought mixed reaction among senators of approval and regret.

Morse commended the woman and Eisenhower on her decision.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon called Mrs. Morse's resignation "a great loss to the United States and to the cause of Latin American friendship and progress."

Californians Tell Kennedy State Is Open

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—California Democrats greet Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) today, and they're primed to tell him: "The state is wide open for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination race."

"I know of no one of party stature in California committed to any one Assemblyman," William A. Munnell, Democratic state chairman, told a reporter.

Gov. Edmund Brown has invited all potential Democratic candidates to visit California before the state's convention to the 1960 national convention is formed.

Brown himself has been mentioned in the early talk about the Democratic ticket but he has declined to go beyond saying he might seek to head the state delegation.

After a Democratic luncheon in his honor, Kennedy planned to fly to Los Angeles by chartered plane to address the Los Angeles Press Club tonight. He goes to Astoria, Ore., Monday, Saturday to talk to the Western Affairs Council of northern California. He returns to Washington Sunday after a private lunch meeting in San Francisco with prominent Democrats.

Beaten Child in Critical Condition

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A partially paralyzed child who allegedly was beaten severely because he would not stand alone remained in critical condition today, nearly a week after being hospitalized.

Twenty-month-old Jerry Dale Davidson of Yellville lay in a crib at Arkansas Children's Hospital while his father was under arrest on an open charge in the incident.

Hospital attendants said the child, paralyzed from the waist down because of a birth injury, suffered a skull fracture and a brain injury in the alleged beating.

Archie Dale Davidson, 32, the father, was in jail at Yellville. Officers said Davidson, a farm worker admitted hitting the child several times last Saturday. His wife told police Davidson beat the boy because he would not stand erect.

The father knew the boy was paralyzed, officers said.

San Antonio Top Glamour Town of Old-World Charm

DEEP IN THE HEART OF TEXAS is colorful San Antonio. The river through the city's heart is a green oasis, adding to its old-world charm. The Magic Circle north goes through old-world ranching country around Bandera and Kerrville; Frederickburg, where Easter Rabbit pagentry is one of the Angora goats, sheep and cattle are raised; east to the water sports mecca around Lake Buchanan; south to Austin, capital of the Lone Star State and home of rich old Texas University; San Marcos and New Braunfels, famed for their crystal clear springs.

Editor's Note: This is the 22nd in a series of suggested highway tour maps which the Hope Star is publishing weekly. The series will cover the South and Southwest during the winter months and cover the Northern sections in the Spring. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up in a scrapbook for future reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER

Deep in the heart of every Texan is San Antonio, where heroes of the Alamo became martyrs in the War of Independence.

Today San Antonio is a top American glamour town, a city of rare attributes. It has retained the old-world charm of its Spanish founders and the vigor of pioneer days when it was the lusty capital of a cattle empire.

Through the heart of the city runs a twisting, winding ribbon of water that is like a glimpse of Venice on the plains of Texas. Legend has it that the Indians called the San Antonio River the "Drunk Old Man Going Home at Night." Staircases lead down from traffic bridges to the green oasis, 20 feet below street level. Perfection of landscaping marks the course of the walled-in little stream. Stone walks follow its banks, shaded by tall cypresses, pecans, weeping willows and palm, shutting out the reality of the city above.

Exotic Oasis

"If you don't want to walk, you can glide along in a gondola or paddle your own cycle boat to see the flower gardens, miniature waterfalls and sidewalk cafes with exotic Mexican food. There even is an amphitheater where the stage is on one bank and the audience is on the other side of the river, using terraced benches upholstered with grass. A spray of water serves as the stage curtain.

Citizens keep eternally young because they are never idle. There is high excitement every year at Fiesta de San Jacinto, which begins April 15. This week of celebration, parades, street bazaars and art shows commemorates the battle in which Texas won her independence from Mexico.

Climax of Fiesta is the Battle of Flowers, a parade where pretty girls in floral chariots throw blossoms at the spectators in the streets. In the old days the event was a real battle with gusty Texans firing balls of flowers from a garlanded cannon in front of the Alamo.

To most visitors, especially those with youngsters, top priority is given the Alamo, the Texas shrine that stands in the center of the busy city. Although surrounded by tall buildings, it still dominates the scene. Story, song and film have immortalized the little band of 187 citizen-soldiers who, in 1836, fought for 13 days until the last man was killed by the besieging forces of 5,000 trained and well-armed Mexican troops under General Santa Anna.

Visitors speak in hushed voices when they enter the Alamo, which was the chapel of an abandoned mission where the Texans made their final stand under the joint command of Colonel W. B. Travis and Colonel Jim Bowie. As every boy knows, other heroic fighters included Davy Crockett and James Bonham.

U. S. Postpones Space Shots at Planet Venus

WASHINGTON (AP)—For the time being, the United States has postponed three important space shots—two probes aimed at Venus and an earth satellite to swing as high as 30,000 miles.

Engineering difficulties in both the payload and boost vehicle system was the only reason given Friday for the delay by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The probes at cloud-shrouded Venus had been set for June. Now they'll have to wait at least 18 months, because the planet swings away from earth and won't be in a good position again until mid-January 1961.

One of the Venus probes was intended to go near the planet, and on past it. The other was to be an attempt to put an earthling moon in orbit around the sister planet. Venus has no natural moons of its own.

The high satellite experiment was to try to put a moonlet into a very long, flat orbit. At its high point it would have been 30,000 miles away from earth, but would have swung back to within 20 miles of earth on each trip.

This shot was set for April and already had been postponed at least twice.

NASA said the high satellite would have tested the instruments slated to go on the Venus probes. These would collect information about cosmic rays and other things "on journeys millions of miles into space, in the general direction of Venus," NASA said.

There have been published reports that the Soviets may try a shot at Venus this summer.

To Welcome First Ship Up New Seaway

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—The flag ship Santa Regina, first American vessel to use the rebuilt St. Lawrence Seaway, expected a warm reception in Chicago Thursday, but ran instead into a union dispute over its pilot.

The 460-foot Grace Lines ship was forced to lie offshore for four hours while negotiators for a new American pilots' union huddled with representatives of the vessel's owners.

The ship finally was allowed to proceed to dock and an official welcome from Mayor Richard Daley and other city officials only after the union agreed to toss the whole problem into the hands of federal mediators.

The union, the Licensed Tugmen's and Pilots' Protective Assn., insisted that one of its pilots be employed to take the 15,000-ton Regina down the Calumet River into Lake Calumet Harbor on the far South Side.

Tugboat men backed the new union.

The line maintained, however, that it already had a pilot the one which had guided the ship through the Great Lakes.

"They were trying to make us the guinea pig," said Ted B. West, executive vice president of the lines, who made the 1,250-mile voyage down the seaway from Montreal.

After the union group, headed by President Patrick Cullinan, decided to turn the issue over to mediators, the Regina proceeded the seven miles to the harbor.

Daley greeted the ship's skipper, Capt. Hawley MacDermitt, and gave him a flag of the city of Chicago. Police and Fire Department bands and marching units, chilled after the four-hour wait, also hailed the Regina, largest ship ever to enter lake Calumet.

Arkansas Girl Is Homemaking of Year

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP)—An Arkansas teen-ager who makes her own wardrobe and counts baking fancy pies her favorite hobby yesterday was a member of the Arkansas Club of America.

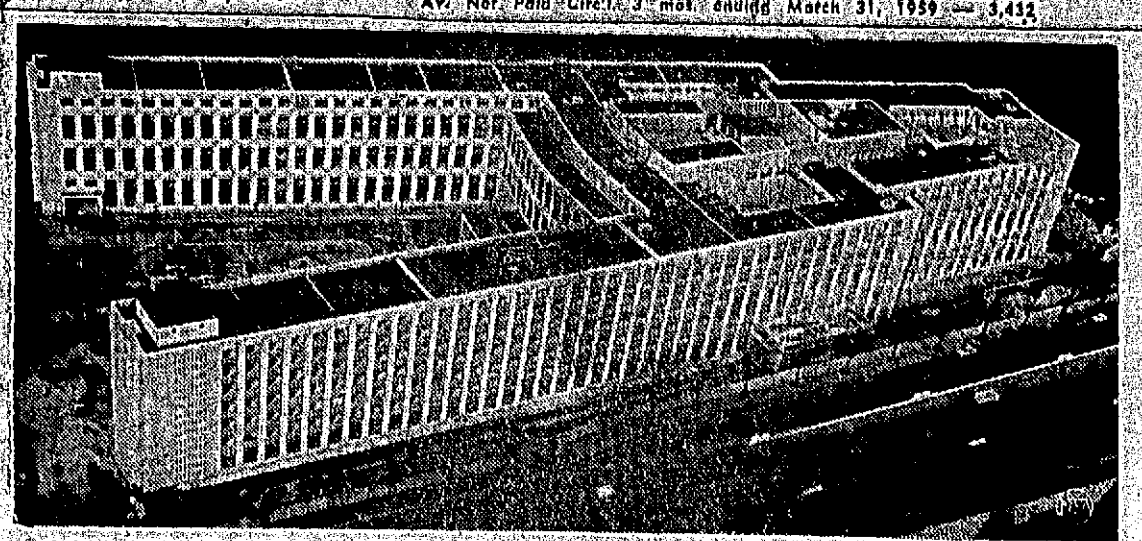

The award to Helen Lommasom, 16-year-old member of the Fort Smith Ark. Girls Club, was announced at the organization's national headquarters here.

Mrs. Richard Nixon, wife of the vice president, will make the presentation in the Nixon home, at Washington, May 6.

Miss Lommasom is the daughter of Sgt. L. and Mrs. Charles R. Lommasom. Her father is stationed at Fort Polk, La.

She was selected from candidates submitted by Girls Clubs coast to coast as "the most representative of all girls clubs members now learning home making skills." The national organization has a combined membership of 450,000.

Asks Whether Strauss Will Cooperate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D-Minn.) questioned today whether Lewis L. Strauss would cooperate with Congress as secretary of commerce.

In testimony prepared for the Senate Commerce Committee, McCarthy contended the Senate should reject President Eisenhower's nomination of Strauss for the post, in which he is serving by recess appointment.

McCarthy said there is grave doubt whether Strauss "could be counted upon to cooperate fully with the Congress in carrying out either its legislative or investigative functions."

There is doubt also, he said, whether Strauss could be relied on to interpret and administer laws in keeping with the intent of Congress.

McCarthy said he based these conclusions on the record of Strauss' actions and statements as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, a position he held prior to his appointment to the Cabinet last fall.

Before hearing McCarthy, the committee planned to question an atomic scientist who accused Strauss of narrow-minded, vindictive and sometimes unethical labors.

Dr. David R. Inglis, chairman of the Federation of American Scientists, said he believes that most scientists have a strong dislike for Strauss — largely, he said, because of his role in "expanding security in science beyond what they believe to be reasonable."

Describes Tiny Mars Moons as Space Stations

LONDON (AP)—A Soviet scientist said today the two tiny moons of Mars are artificial space stations, placed in orbit by a now-extinct race of Martians.

I. Shklovskiy set forth his theory in the Communist youth paper Komsomolskaya Pravda, quoted by Moscow radio.

Shklovskiy said the Martian moons, Phobos and Deimos, are probably hollow. From his observations, he believes they are slowly spiraling down toward Mars and they will crash on its surface.

The Soviet physicist said there is definite evidence that Phobos, the moon nearest Mars, is speeding up as it rotates about its parent planet.

"This is the same behavior as that of artificial earth satellites. Their speed is slowed down by the resistance of the atmosphere and they lose height, going faster and faster as they approach the earth."

"These two bodies may weigh about 100 million tons," Shklovskiy said, "but the creation of such satellites would not be an insoluble engineering problem for intelligent beings."

There is now hardly any oxygen left in the Martian atmosphere and highly developed life no longer exists there.

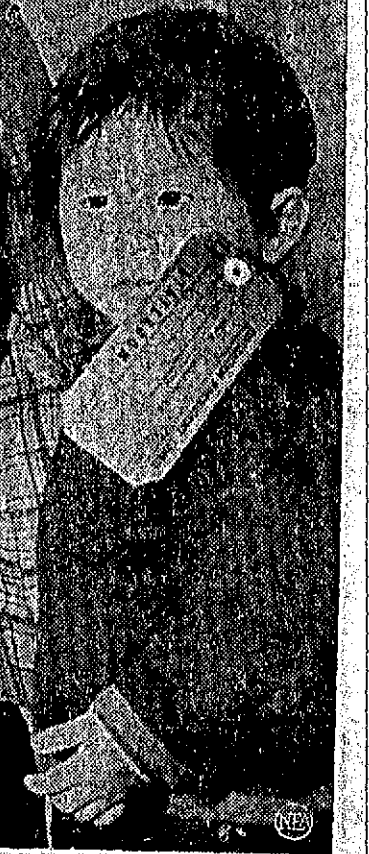

"But many astronomers believe the atmosphere did have oxygen two to three billion years ago. Intelligent beings had probably appeared on Mars and at that time had achieved a high level of culture."

Montgomery Ends Talks in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP)—British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery flew back to London today after a two-day visit to discuss East-West relations with Soviet leaders.

The decision to proceed with the space program was taken Friday at a meeting of Prime Minister Macmillan and his top ministers, the reports said. The Daily Telegraph said the program would cost between 25 and 56 million dollars.

The newspaper said indications were that the satellite would be propelled by Britain's 2,500-mile range Blue Streak missile and that the satellite itself would be American and its instruments inside British.

Mamie Leads Tour Through White House

WASHINGTON (AP)—"This is such a livable house," Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower told some former tenants of the White House.

The First Lady led an unusual tour Thursday for sons and daughters of former presidents here for a "Life With Father" luncheon.

She took them from the top to the bottom of the executive mansion. The tour included her own bedroom, blooming with bouquets of pink roses, and the First Family's private dining room.

The eight children of presidents and descendants of chief executives looked over with a critical eye what once had been home for some of them. Many had not been back.

Much brighter and airier, since the renovation during President Truman's term, they decided, Harry S. Truman's famous second-floor balcony got mixed comment.

Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif.) a son of FDR, thought it was a good place from which to take photographs.

Architecturally "it just ruined" the White House, opened outspoken Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, daughter of President Theodore Roosevelt.

President Eisenhower took time out from his official duties to greet the guests. He directed Mrs. Marion Cleveland Amon of New York City to a portrait of her mother, Mrs. Grover Cleveland in the Gold Room. Mrs. Amon said she thought it was a poor copy of the original.

The Women's National Press Club, celebrating its 40th anniversary, sparked the idea of getting the famous children together. They had invited all 20 children of the presidents, but only nine could come.

British to Send Up Joint Satellite

LONDON (AP)—Britain is planning to send a British-American earth satellite into space, London newspapers reported today.

The decision to proceed with the space program was taken Friday at a meeting of Prime Minister Macmillan and his top ministers, the reports said. The Daily Telegraph said the program would cost between 25 and 56 million dollars.

The newspaper said indications were that the satellite would be propelled by Britain's 2,500-mile range Blue Streak missile and that the satellite itself would be American and its instruments inside British.

Says Arkansas Senator a Great Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) last night listed Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) as among nine men in public life he described as having principles, conviction and courage.

Goldwater said the men he named, including two now dead, would throw off the blanket of conformity which suffocates public life.

He said their type was needed to arrest a 30-year trend toward centralizing government which he declared is carrying the nation toward socialism.

Goldwater made his remarks at a dinner by the American Good Government Society, which presented awards to McClellan and Secretary of Commerce Lewis L. Strauss.

The self-styled conservative from Arizona mentioned the late Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio and the late Republican Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

"We need men like Bob Taft, whose dedication to the public interest surpassed even his own life ambition," Goldwater asserted.

"We need men like Joe McCarthy, who, despite his shortcomings, did so much to alert our people to Communist subversion of American government."

Others Goldwater mentioned were Sen. John J. Williams (R-Del.), Styles Bridges (R-NH), Harry F. Byrd (D-VA.), and McClellan; Hyman G. Rickover, developer of the atomic-powered submarine; and Strauss.

The American Good Government Society, as a private educational organization, each year awards illuminated scrolls to two men it believes have advanced the cause of good government.

The society bestowed its 1959 awards on McClellan and Strauss. Taft and Byrd were the first to receive such awards, in 1953.

A scroll presented to McClellan listed among his achievements the "exposure of corruption and tyranny in labor unions."

Accepting his award, McClellan said equally, liberty and justice must be preserved by law and not by "dictatorial powers arrogated to men unto themselves."

On hand for the presentation were Gov. Orval E. Faubus and a big delegation from Arkansas.

"I have at all done anything to deserve this. If my labors and feeble efforts have in any way contributed to good government, to national security, and to the public welfare, I readily and proudly acknowledge that the larger share of the credit is due to my loved ones," said McClellan.

Argentina Welcomes Cuba's Castro

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—A large crowd waited through winter cold until 1:40 a.m. today to cheer Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on his arrival in Argentina.

Castro came by plane from the United States and Brazil to attend the Inter-American Economic Conference. The Cuban revolutionary leader spoke briefly to the crowd, which broke through police lines in an attempt to embrace him.

Japan May Admit Union Leader

TOKYO (AP)—Japan today promised an entrance visa to leftist union leader Harry Bridges and three Russians to attend an international dock workers conference here May 11-14.

But a spokesman for the Justice Ministry said the visa application of Louis Goldblatt, secretary-treasurer of Bridges' International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, was turned down because the American was deported from England in 1949 for leading a dockworkers' strike in London.

Japanese union leaders said that if the government denied visas to foreign delegates, the conference organized by Bridges might be moved to another country.

French Hope For Stabilization In Near Future

By SAM DAWSON

PARIS (AP)—The French are greeting American businessmen these days with a fair amount of good news and a couple of promises.

And the Americans are asking their French opposites to answer three as yet unresolved questions.

Will French labor upset the economic applicant with insistent demands for higher wages? 2. Will the French farmer stand for any clamping down on his prices? 3. How and when can the Algerian bloodletting be stopped and the financial drain on France ended?

But the French seem very confident today.

They are particularly proud of the good news which in recent days has pointed to success for President Charles de Gaulle's austerity program.

For one month at least France's exports have topped her imports — the first time in many months — the French farmer is so stable in present that even the tourists are not looking for bargains on the black market, but getting their francs at the banks.

The cost of living index for the first time in many months was stable in April.

The Bank of France is so confident that the threat of further inflation is looked for the time being at least that it has lowered the discount rate from 4.25 to 4 percent, giving the possibility to industry (French and American firms here alike) to borrow more for expansion of plants or activities.

Two promises the French are giving American business are: 1. That French import quotas on American goods will be relaxed further in the not too distant future — they already are relaxed on 90 percent of France's trade with other European nations. 2. That some of the red tape that hampers firms wanting to build plants in France will be eliminated.

The French government is stable at the moment, and the expectation it will last for a time is credited to three things: wages have been held fairly level; so have prices on manufactured goods; and, food, the big hope is the weather. It's been excellent for farming so far, meaning that the new crop of vegetables and fruits should come to the market earlier and in abundance.

Failure to Override Veto Jolts Dems

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP)—Jolted by their inability to upset an Eisenhower veto, congressional Democrats took a new look today at their plans to push through some big-spending legislation.

They may have to mark down sharply the price tags on some pending bills or risk vetoes which they now have little hope of overriding.

"They will have to be a little more reasonable after what happened yesterday in the House," commented House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

What happened was a double reverse for the Democrats and a dual victory for President Eisenhower.

The House refused by vote of 280-146 to override Eisenhower's veto of a bill which would have taken from Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson his power to refuse loans to rural telephone and electric cooperatives.

The 274 Democrats and 6 Republicans who voted to override fell four votes short of the required two-thirds. Four Democrats joined 142 Republicans in voting to support Eisenhower's position.

It was the 138th bill vetoed by the President. He has never had a veto overridden.

Facing probable vetoes if they ever reach the White House, in their present form are bills calling for heavy federal outlays for airport development, housing, community facilities and aid for depressed areas.

Deborah Simpson Celebrates Second Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. Don Simpson honored their daughter, Deborah, with a lawn party Sunday, April 26 from 2:30 till 5 p.m. The yard was galley decorated with balloons and each child received bubble gum, stickers and balloons as favors.

Those enjoying the occasion were: Shan Herndon, Robbie and Marc Robinson, Ray Rogers, Cathy Robinson, Cynthia Bubb and David Sissons, Karen and Marc Higgs, Randy and Rhonda Mathenia, Pam and Linda Parsons. After the opening of the gifts, Mrs. Simpson assisted by Mrs. Woody Parsons served white cake squares trimmed in pink, ice cream and cold drinks.

Birthday cake and coffee was served to the parents and each child received a ride in a sheltie pony cart.

to the hill in movie-type cowboy gear.

The town of Bandera has managed to keep its western appearance and atmosphere. The Frontier Times Museum has a collection of early-day relics, priceless old photographs and original newspaper accounts written about pioneer day happenings which sometimes are at a variance with the news and "spruced-up" family histories.

In spring the Hill Country becomes a carpet of color as you continue north (Texas 101). Bluebonnets, the state flower, grow in profusion and are set off by bright red Indian blanket. Nature has been generous with more than the flowers; wild turkeys, oftenly up from the roadside, and overabundant across the blackberry highway. Life in the small town goes on undisturbed by the summer visitors. Roads and country are a part of everyday life. Contestants at the Saturday afternoon competitions are local cowboys and ranchers, who like to show that good "cuttin' horses" they have.

Saturday Fun

There is dancing Saturday night after the rodeo. It is not unusual to see a cowboy, hat pushed back on his head and a cigarette hanging from his lips, dancing with a pretty Texas belle, dressed in the latest of fashions.

Cameras are important equipment around Kerrville. Vast herds of sheep and goats that account for the area's wool and mohair industries are a delight to the shuttering. Action pictures are on the agenda at Kerrville State Park, just outside of town on the Guadalupe River, which is a haven for waterskiers and speed boat enthusiasts. Waterfalls, caves, dinosaur tracks and fossils also provide good lens hunting.

Continuing north (Texas 101) toward Fredericksburg, you leave the vacation spots and pass through ranch country unchanged by time. A windmill against the sky may be the only reminder of civilization. The region suggests the Pennsylvania Dutch country—stone fences, tidy fields and farmhouses built of rock in the German Colonial manner, some showing their age by the loopholes built to permit rifle fire against Indians.

Fredericksburg is a German settlement and proud of its origin. Fires flare from hilltops rimming the city on the night before Easter, a century-old custom based on folklore. The legend is that the Easter Rabbit is on the hills tending cauldrons in which he cooks the eggs and the brilliant, colored eggs, which the little bunnies have gathered from the wildflowers.

Sunday Houses. Of special interest in Fredericksburg are the six-sided Pioneer Memorial Museum and the old "Sunday Houses," well preserved reminders of a bygone era when farmers built these tiny two-story weekend homes so that they could come to town, shop, attend church, dance, go to church the next day and still keep the family together under one roof. The young people, in the loft, reached by outside stairways.

From Llano the Magic Circle curves east (Texas 201) and across Buchanan Dam, a man-created mecca for boating, swimming, water skiing and fishing. Nearby is Longhorn Cavern State Park, an underground beauty spot that is partially explored. Once the hideout of Indians and rustlers, its cool depths are particularly soothing on a summer day.

Turning south (U.S. 183) the objective is Austin, the state capital. Texans modestly will tell you that the only reason their pink granite capital building is slightly smaller than the one in Washington, D. C. is that it might embarrass the rest of the nation. Even so, they say the dome of the Lone Star structure is seven feet higher than the national capitol.

The other famed landmark of Austin is the 22-story tower on the main building of the University of Texas. The welcome that you get here is as friendly as any you will ever experience in your own town.

In recent months they have enshrined the Santa Rita, an oil rig that brought in the first well on lands given the University in western Texas. It now stands on an

DOROTHY DIX

Wisecracks Won't Worry Fun-Loving Philanderer

Dear Dorothy Dix: Last week when my husband and I were nightclubbing in the city we ran across a neighbor of ours with a woman who is not his wife. The following day he came over to offer us an explanation. He said he made it a practice to run around on his wife but always made it clear to her that he was interested only in a casual date. Sometimes he "forgot" to tell the girls he was married but he didn't mean to make much difference. A young lady asked what he'd do if his wife went out with other men and he said he'd never care. He said his wife never dreamed he was unfaithful to her and he'd "married her for love." Nothing about his extramarital activities. We wanted to take him down a peg or two but these things are too touchy. We'd like a good remark to give him the next time we see him. Can you suggest something? Give us a good answer. The man travels quite a bit so this must be a very frequent occurrence.

DISCUSSED: You'll never cure infidelity with a wise crack. Any man with a wise principle as your neighbor is immune to gags. The wisecracks talk was when he boasted of his conquests. You might have let him know that you considered his revelations revolting and his boasting degrading.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I recently married a man with four children and I have two of my own from a previous marriage. Recently he told me something that disturbs me very much. He has his first wife's jewelry in a safe deposit box for his girl on her fifteenth birthday. I have been very hurt by this because I want the child to regard me as her mother. I feel that the jewelry will have the effect of saying "This belonged to your real mother." The child has no memory of her own mother since she was a baby when I married her father—D.G.

The things that influence your stepdaughter are the years of loving care you've given her and the gift of her mother's jewelry. Since she will not have her fifteenth birthday for quite a while, why worry now? Your husband may change his mind by then or you may become reconciled to the situation. After all, with older brothers, the child will not grow up in ignorance of her parenthood.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I have been married over 30 years and work away from home. Recently a young single man asked me a date and I accepted. I told my husband who raised no serious objection. However, his attitude toward me seems to have changed. Was I foolish? G. A.

Dear G. A.: Yes, indeed you were. Suppose you got home to find that your husband had been cheating? Could you have been different? Admit it, you're sorry you hurt him if you did, you know even if he seemed calm and didn't commit the same offense again.

Send your problem to DOROTHY DIX. Be sure to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope, and address her care of this newspaper.

Doctor, Dentist Die Over Office Space

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—A doctor and a dentist at odds over office space were killed Thursday in a whirling flurry of bullets behind the locked doors of their joint reception room.

Police theorized the physician, Dr. John T. Hart, 61, killed the dentist, Dr. George M. Winograd, 68, and then turned the gun on himself.

Three tellers telling of despondency and "my last earthly act" were found on Hart's body.

The had of bullets alarmed more than a score of persons being treated in the doctors' office building, the Medical Center Building on North State Street, on the near North Side.

Police said Winograd had asked that Hart be evicted from the joint offices. They theorized the men had quarreled over office effects just before the shooting.

Public opinion. Pardee hoisted the ringing arrogance in his voice matched by a contemptuous downward sweep of his hand.

"You fellows are as lucky as a general revolt of the underdogs. It is nothing of the kind. It is one scrawny nestor sided by two or three greasy sack renegades."

But presently, limping along the dark street with his son, Pardee asked, "Do you think public opinion is the reason my offer of top wages went begging?"

"Well it might be," Brent said, unsure of himself in the presence of his father.

"The killing of one cow thief shouldn't cause that much resentment. The kind of men I was trying to live don't savvy public opinion. It's not that. But I can't figure out a reasonable explanation."

When they were seated at the supper table, Pardee said to his wife, "I offered top wages today, but only three men would ride for Empire. Can you tell me why, Edith?"

"Clee Veto," she said quietly.

Pardee stared at her across the candlelit table. "That's a silly answer," he chided. "Clee wasn't in town today."

"But his reputation was," Edith Pardee said, an habitual graciousness in the way she spoke.

San Antonio

San Jose, with its rich sculptural ornamentation and exquisite "Rose Window," is one of the most photographed buildings in the Southwest.

Wide-Open Spaces. The Magic Circle north out of San Antonio (Texas 16) to the "Hill Country" takes you into the wide-open spaces so abruptly that it is like passing through a barrier and having a curtain dropped back of you.

Dude ranches and working ranches live beside each other in harmony, although it isn't unusual to see an old-timer shake his head in amazement after he has turned and taken a second look at one of the visiting "greenhorns" dressed land at an intersection of San Jacinto Boulevard, complemented by a western setting of barbed wire fence, cactus and sage brush. Crushed stone at the base has been sprayed with oil to add realism. Since the Santa Rita "blow" in 1923, more than $300 million has come into the permanent university fund from the oil fields.

Attractive residential sections, and parks geared to youth programs, occupy an unusually large portion of the city area of Austin. Showplaces include the new circular dome-covered Municipal Auditorium, the handsome Texas Memorial Museum and the O. Henry Museum, the last one-time home of famous short story writer who began his career as a sideline while working as a bank clerk in Austin. New Braunfels, final stop before completing the Magic Circle back to San Antonio, was first established as a German settlement in 1848 by Prince Carl de Solms-Braunfels. The verbal folklores of Texas tell of the amazement of the matter-of-fact pioneers over the Prince, who surrounded himself with velvet clad courtiers and soldiers who wore brilliant plumes in their hats. Today New Braunfels is a setting of rushing rivers, waterfalls and springs, a delightful vacation spot.

"DADDY'S worn out? You don't think it's easy for ME to put on a temper tantrum, do you?"

"Want to play cops and robbers?"

"He should fit right into your house wrecking business. He's practically a professional already!"

"YAK YAK!"

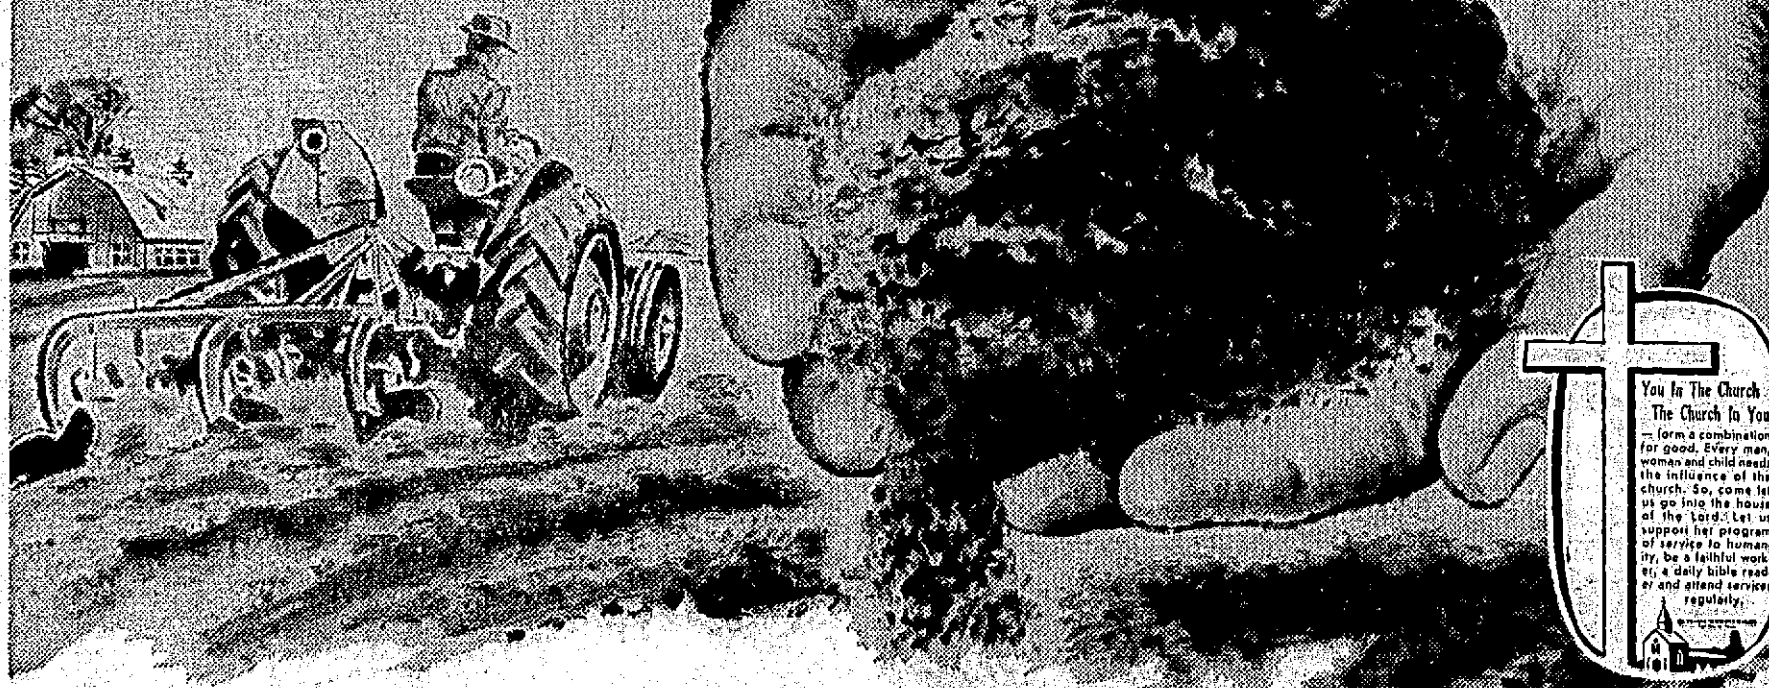

God's Soil

...and it's time to conserve it...time to save it! It is evident, when we witness the increased destruction of timber lands, national cover crops and wide-spread erosion, America needs a national Save-The-Soil-Week. It is urgent that we treat Mother Earth with greater respect and appreciation. We must give back to her as much as we take away. There's no better time than during National Save-The-Soil-Week, to come to a full realization that "The earth is the Lord's and the fullness thereof." We are stewards, appointed by God, to look after the earth He gave us. It is time to renew your faith in God and the Good Earth.
